

February 9, 2017 Below: In the middle of horse country; queen city; this tree loves the water; welcome center art; go fish; the underground railroad; delicious delight; Bertha's Kitchen; say cheese.

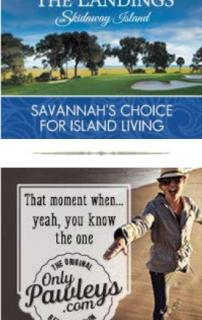

Forward this email to a friend! View Compass eNews in your Web browser.

Take a Road Trip to Aiken SC

Cindy and Dick Rudisill have been living in Aiken for four years, fulfilling long-term dreams and building a new life for themselves in one of the South's most charming towns. A second marriage for both, they've been married for 13 years, and since they found one another, the goal was to move away from the bitter cold of hometown Syracuse, after her children were grown.

"We wanted to live on the East Coast, within a day's drive of the children," said Cindy Rudisill. "We knew we didn't want Florida, and although we owned a townhome on Hilton Head Island, we were looking for something a bit different."

Part of the appeal of the South, in addition to warmer weather, was a lower tax structure.

The couple found a list of master-planned communities and systematically began to consider them all. They wanted to be near a downtown, and decided that living a bit further inland was their preference. Mr. Rudisill was an entrepreneur in the food service business, while Mrs. Rudisill was in nursing.

For both, retirement was more about switching gears than winding down. And then they found Woodside Plantation. Today, they're enjoying their perfect home, as well as the many friends they've met through Woodside.

And then there's golf.

Learn more.

Courtesy of Aiken SC photos: Hopelands Gardens; Polo

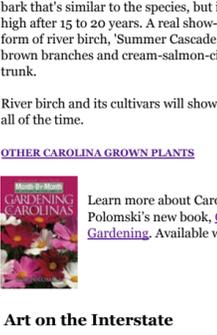

Where in the Carolina World are you?

Gimme Some Sugar.

That's right, we've got the best of both worlds here -- urban chic within view, gorgeous green space where you are. Take a walk or ride through this piece of heaven today. Soon, it will cover 20 miles of trails and walkways in this most royal of cities. Where are you?

Carolina Home Grown

River Birch Tree

By Bob Polomski

Wintertime flowers provide a happy place for those of us who wish to escape from the short, cold days of winter. Oftentimes, after the blooms fade the shrub or tree disappears in the landscape as it yields the stage to flowering plants that bloom later in the season.

This now-you-see-me-now-you-don't feature is the result of the ephemeral nature of flowers. If you're interested in year-round ornamental interest, you must consider bark.

One of my favorite native trees that offers 24/7 beauty is the river birch (Betula nigra). This frequent denizen of moist areas -- banks of streams, rivers, and bottomlands -- can reach a mature height and spread of 40 to 70 ft. It's commonly grown as a multi-trunked specimen to showcase its attractive exfoliating reddish to cinnamon brown bark that peels away in large papery sheets. On older trees, the darker grayish-brown bark splits into coarse shredded-looking plates.

The couple found a list of master-planned communities and systematically began to consider them all. They wanted to be near a downtown, and decided that living a bit further inland was their preference. Mr. Rudisill was an entrepreneur in the food service business, while Mrs. Rudisill was in nursing.

For both, retirement was more about switching gears than winding down. And then they found Woodside Plantation. Today, they're enjoying their perfect home, as well as the many friends they've met through Woodside.

And then there's golf.

Learn more.

Courtesy of Aiken SC photos: Hopelands Gardens; Polo

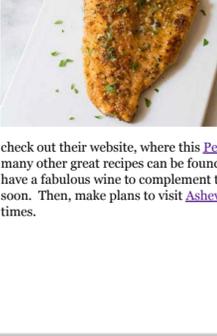

Where in the Carolina World are you?

Gimme Some Sugar.

That's right, we've got the best of both worlds here -- urban chic within view, gorgeous green space where you are. Take a walk or ride through this piece of heaven today. Soon, it will cover 20 miles of trails and walkways in this most royal of cities. Where are you?

Carolina Home Grown

River Birch Tree

By Bob Polomski

Wintertime flowers provide a happy place for those of us who wish to escape from the short, cold days of winter. Oftentimes, after the blooms fade the shrub or tree disappears in the landscape as it yields the stage to flowering plants that bloom later in the season.

This now-you-see-me-now-you-don't feature is the result of the ephemeral nature of flowers. If you're interested in year-round ornamental interest, you must consider bark.

One of my favorite native trees that offers 24/7 beauty is the river birch (Betula nigra). This frequent denizen of moist areas -- banks of streams, rivers, and bottomlands -- can reach a mature height and spread of 40 to 70 ft. It's commonly grown as a multi-trunked specimen to showcase its attractive exfoliating reddish to cinnamon brown bark that peels away in large papery sheets. On older trees, the darker grayish-brown bark splits into coarse shredded-looking plates.

The couple found a list of master-planned communities and systematically began to consider them all. They wanted to be near a downtown, and decided that living a bit further inland was their preference. Mr. Rudisill was an entrepreneur in the food service business, while Mrs. Rudisill was in nursing.

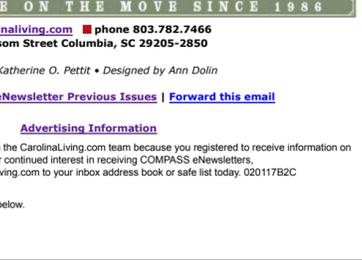

For both, retirement was more about switching gears than winding down. And then they found Woodside Plantation. Today, they're enjoying their perfect home, as well as the many friends they've met through Woodside.

And then there's golf.

Learn more.

Courtesy of Aiken SC photos: Hopelands Gardens; Polo

Where in the Carolina World are you?

Gimme Some Sugar.

That's right, we've got the best of both worlds here -- urban chic within view, gorgeous green space where you are. Take a walk or ride through this piece of heaven today. Soon, it will cover 20 miles of trails and walkways in this most royal of cities. Where are you?

Carolina Home Grown

River Birch Tree

By Bob Polomski

Wintertime flowers provide a happy place for those of us who wish to escape from the short, cold days of winter. Oftentimes, after the blooms fade the shrub or tree disappears in the landscape as it yields the stage to flowering plants that bloom later in the season.

This now-you-see-me-now-you-don't feature is the result of the ephemeral nature of flowers. If you're interested in year-round ornamental interest, you must consider bark.

One of my favorite native trees that offers 24/7 beauty is the river birch (Betula nigra). This frequent denizen of moist areas -- banks of streams, rivers, and bottomlands -- can reach a mature height and spread of 40 to 70 ft. It's commonly grown as a multi-trunked specimen to showcase its attractive exfoliating reddish to cinnamon brown bark that peels away in large papery sheets. On older trees, the darker grayish-brown bark splits into coarse shredded-looking plates.

The couple found a list of master-planned communities and systematically began to consider them all. They wanted to be near a downtown, and decided that living a bit further inland was their preference. Mr. Rudisill was an entrepreneur in the food service business, while Mrs. Rudisill was in nursing.

For both, retirement was more about switching gears than winding down. And then they found Woodside Plantation. Today, they're enjoying their perfect home, as well as the many friends they've met through Woodside.

And then there's golf.

Learn more.

Courtesy of Aiken SC photos: Hopelands Gardens; Polo

Good times ahead

Hello,

We're sharing Carolinas' best for the month of February. Winter-friendly getaways for all tastes, including history, culture, year-round outdoor fun, and that's just for starters!

Bookmark recommended restaurants, inns, shops, special events and historic homes to amuse and enlighten.

Now's the perfect time to make plans, because affordable travel beckons and we're out having fun. The festivals are already rolling and the glorious Carolinas weather will entice us all to spend more time outdoors.

Yes to tax incentives, real estate bonanzas -- they sweeten the idea that maybes, with job listings abundant, it's your time to relocate, retire or acquire that Carolina vacation investment deal. And once you arrive, there's so much to do and see here. Seaside, mountain-top, small towns, big cities.

Click here for links to 35 Road Trips to showcase our best.

Then, there's always CarolinaLiving.com showcasing our best town profiles & Tax Facts ... all guaranteed to guide you straight.

Wishing you happy travels and just maybe, a new Carolina slice of heaven to call your own in 2017!

Leyla & Patrick Mason
Co-Founders
Center For Carolina Living
Showcasing Carolina Life & Adventures

Forward this email to a friend.

Have you been to "Little" Washington?

During Black History month, consider a visit to Little Washington, NC, a fascinating small town with lots to do and see. Take some time exploring downtown through their Historical Walking Tour. Then, stop in at the Washington waterfront Underground Railroad Museum to learn about how the destination served as one of the main stops on the Underground Railroad.

Learn more about what to do in Little Washington.

Request the Guide

Updated town information, six fun new Carolina Adventures, and one heck of a good-looking feature showcasing gardens. Order yours today.

Click here for the official hold-in-your-hand Guide to Carolina lifestyle fun and adventure trips, plus real estate tips, tax & cost-of-living advantages, retirement opportunities and town profiles.

Just share your dream goals and we'll help lead you to smart Carolina life and times.

Facebook

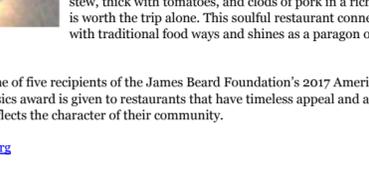

For my birthday month (and Valentine's Day) my spouse bought me tickets. That's right, experiences -- the best kind of gift in my humble opinion. A special concert, workshop in Bonsai (where less is more), preview to a new exhibit at the museum, and an evening painting at a local paint and sip establishment. (Not sure about the last one. Sipping, yes; painting? Nothing wall-worthy, I am sure.)

Share your thoughtful-est gift ideas, and like us on Facebook.

Heading your way

- Let's Take a Road Trip!
- Carolina Famous Faces
- Insider Attractions
- Adventures

Bertha's Kitchen

On North Meeting Street, the flavors of the Lowcountry boldly emanate from this robin's-egg-blue spot, where Albertha Grant first opened shop in 1980. Her presence is still felt each time a cook hefts a stepot to the stove and tosses in a seasoning hunk of sideameat. Vibrant family portraits by Charleston muralist Charles DeSaussure line the walls. Today, her daughters, Julia Grant, Linda Pinckney, and Sharon Coakley, serve fried whiting, fried pork chops, red rice, praline rice, stewed chicken neck with gizzards and lima beans. Regulars queue the cafeteria line before eleven each morning. Construction workers exit with foam clamshells of Gullah excellence. Okra soup, a dark garlicky stew, thick with tomatoes, and clods of pork in a richly aromatic broth, is worth the trip alone. This soulful restaurant neatly modern diners with traditional food ways and shines as a paragon of the region's living culinary history.

The restaurant is one of five recipients of the James Beard Foundation's 2017 America's Classics award. The America's Classics award is given to restaurants that have timeless appeal and are cherished for quality food that reflects the character of their community.

www.Jamesbeard.org

Say Cheese, Please.

Mark your Calendars Sunday, April 23 from 12 - 4 p.m. at Highland Brewing Company for the third-annual Carolina Mountain Cheese Fest.

Tickets on sale soon - the perfect gift for your Valentine.
www.wnccheesetrail.org

Reach 25,000 COMPASS eNews subscribers!
Send your NewsWorthy Releases For Consideration To:
KPettit@CarolinaLiving.com or PMason@CarolinaLiving.com

Advertising Information

You and your family are receiving this eNews from the CarolinaLiving.com team because you registered to receive information on Carolina destinations and lifestyle. To confirm your continued interest in receiving COMPASS eNewsletters, and to ensure delivery, please add info@carolinalive.com to your inbox address book or safe list today. 02/01/17/82C

To unsubscribe click the SafeUnsubscribe option below.

View Compass eNews in your Web browser.